

Miss Ruth Kitchenman Is Wed To Mr. Edward Stanski

EDDINGTON, Jan. 31 — At the hour of four in Eddington Presbyterian Church, on Sunday Miss Ruth Kitchenman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer F. Kitchenman, Croydon, was united in matrimony to Mr. Edward Stanski, son of Mrs. Stanley Stanski, Burlington, N. J., and the late Mr. Stanski. The Rev. Arthur D. Sargis officiated.

A tailored suit of medium grey wool, white crepe blouse with close fitting neckline, yoke of lace, and long sleeves was the choice of the bride. Also worn were white gold flower earrings, a grey straw off-the-face hat with veil, black suede ankle strap cut out slippers, and white kid gloves. Her corsage was a white orchid.

The bridesmaid was Miss Vera Kitchenman, a sister of the bride, who selected a suit of blue grey doeklin; pink crepe blouse; black straw, off-the-face hat trimmed with a pink rose, matching crepe ribbon and veil; black suede ankle strap slippers and pink gloves. She wore a corsage of pink roses.

A brother-in-law of the bridegroom, Mr. Frederick Muth, Burlington, N. J., served as best man. Following a wedding trip, the newlyweds will reside in Burlington.

Today's Quiet Moment

By The Rev. Samuel Gaskell

Pastor

Tullytown Methodist Church

—O—

"It is a good thing to give thanks unto the Lord." (Psalm 92: 1) So said the Psalmist, and he knew a good thing when he saw it. The ungratefulness that fails to thank God may be the first step in our spiritual deterioration. Watch it! The Lord can get along nicely minus your thanks, but you can't afford it. The price is too high. No soul can afford to face spiritual beggary; and that is what it means.

Thanksgiving is a benediction to the one who gives it. It is an uplift needed by all. "It bears me up on eagle's wings; and helps me for some moments feast, with Jesus' priests and kings." Come ye thankful people come; and give the Lord the glory due unto His Name.

Through Jesus Christ our Lord, Amen.

Two local youths are recovering from attacks of chicken pox at the home of their grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. John Picari, 389 Pond street, the boys affected are Joseph V. Genco and Robert Mocer.

Announcement has been made by

formerly of Chestnut Hill, of the engagement of their daughter, Miss Marie Louise Rauterberg, and Mr. Joseph L. Davidson, son of Mrs. Louis C. Spring, of Bristol, and the late Mr. Joseph L. Davidson. The marriage will take place in April. Miss Rauterberg was graduated from Springside School and is a member of the Junior League. She made her debut in Philadelphia several seasons ago. During the war, Miss Rauterberg served in the WAVES, and has been attending Pennsylvania State College. She is now visiting her cousin, Mrs. Arthur Emley Brown, Chestnut Hill, until February, after which she will join her parents in Schenectady, N. Y., where her father is on duty. Mr. Davidson is an alumnus of the University of Pennsylvania, Philadelphia, and served as a captain in the Army during the war.

PALMYRA PROVES EASY OPPONENTS FOR THE WARRIORS

PALMYRA, N. J., Jan. 31 — Palmyra High failed to crack the Bristol Twilight Softball League here Saturday night as the Warriors outclassed the Jerseyites, 57-34, in a one-sided affair.

Bristol's defense was so tight that for the first six minutes and forty seconds, Palmyra did not score a point. It did manage to make a goal at that point of the game. However, fully to and one-half minutes elapsed before the Jersey boys made their first field goal, Haines getting that.

While Palmyra was busy trying to penetrate the Warriors' defense, Coach Bloom's minions were racking up points in fast order. Bristol had a 15-1 lead at the quarter and at the half-time count were in front by a 29-15 count.

MORRISVILLE TIRES IN LAST QUARTER; LOSES TO FALLS

Tiring in the last quarter, the Morrisville Hoopers bowed to the Falls Alumni quintet yesterday afternoon in a Bristol Basketball League game on the Rohm and Haas floor. Final score was: Falls Alumni, 43; Morrisville, 31.

Falls Alumni really put on the team in the last session. They held a one-point edge, 29-28, when the period started and succeeded in holding the Hoopers to three points, a foul and field goal by "Mickey" Stradling. While this guarding was going on, the Alumni contingent was passing consistently and swishing the cords for field goals to register 14 points.

4-GAME STREAK OF ROHM & HAAS HAS BEEN BLASTED

The four-game winning streak of the Rohm and Haas team was shattered yesterday afternoon on the Maple Beach club-house floor as the chemical makers lost a heart-breaker to the St. Ann's A. A. dribblers, 45-42.

The Rohm and Haas aggregation outplayed the winners and did much better floor work. But St. Ann's had the better individual shooters from the floor and this proved to be their margin of victory.

Interest is Shown In Local Softball League

The first meeting of the second season for the Bristol Twilight Softball League was held Friday evening in the television room of Auto Boys, and six organizations have expressed their desire for the continuation of this league, and also their interest in the formation of the league for the 1949 season—Tullytown A. C., Jefferson A. C., Franklin A. C., Moose Organization, Fleetwing Estates, and Auto Boys are these teams.

The meeting was a short one, and a few plans were discussed. The second meeting and a very important one is to be held Friday evening at the same place at 9 p. m. Organizations interested in presenting a team in this Bristol Twilight Softball League are urged to attend this meeting.

ANDALUSIA MARINE FIGHTS TO FINALS IN GOLDEN GLOVES

QUANTICO, Va., — Jan. 31 — Another team trophy was added to Andalusia's display of awards, as three Marines remained on top in the Washington, D. C., Golden Gloves classics.

Tommy White, Pete Oliver and Leonard Bendall are the Leather-neck title holders by virtue of their campaigns through the tourney. All novices, they set the stage for Col. Harvey L. Miller, USMC, chairman of the D. C. boxing commission, to hand the trophy to Marine coach Freddie Lenti.

White, fighting at 118, used a handy right to take a split decision over his finalist opposition. The St. Louis Marine sent sailor David Grier once on a trip through the ropes.

Pete Oliver, 147-pounder from Cleveland, also gathered in a decision, looking all the time for a TKO. Eddie Gower, another sailor fighter, had the stamina to hold out for the full go. Speedy and accurate with both hands, the Marine led the battle in crowd-pleasing style.

Third Quantico title of the year went to Leonard Bendall of Norfolk, Va. Bendall took the heavy championship on default by Abbott of Andrews Field. Marine Bendall and Johnny Carberry, also from Andrews Field, volunteered for an exhibition bout to fill the card, and the airman went under for a TKO in 50 seconds.

Runner up spots in the Golden Gloves events went to five other Marines. Billy McCartney, 126, from Andalusia, Pa., fought to the novice finals where he met National Guardsman Billy Swayne and lost by a TKO.

Four seniors, two of them defending titles won last year, went under to classy opposition. Harry Rogers (Portland, Me.), 1948 champ at 135, lost an unpopular decision to Pete Cianski of St. Mary's Club, with the crowd roaring its disapproval.

Kelth King (Ann Arbor, Mich.), heavyweight defender from 1948's bouts, met and dropped a hard-fought decision to Eddie Grant, Apollo A. C. representative.

Marine Alen Santoy of San Antonio, Tex., lost his 112 pound session with Eugene Smith (Liberty, A. C.) in one of the best matches on the card, while Walt Stipanovich, 160, from Pittsburgh, Pa., went all the way against Roland Randall of Mel A. C. to lose by a decision.

Europe's Poverty Is Concentrated In Occupied Areas

Hours of crawling agony surrounded in a railroad coach by Soviet soldiers and police who may at any minute decide to check one's identity.

It requires, too, the willingness of all to whom one talks to subject himself to possible imprisonment and even death as "spies."

After five nerve-racking days in the Russian occupied sector of Germany this correspondent returned to Berlin, unrecognized, to write this series of articles.

The traveler in eastern Germany becomes inured to many things—the endless succession of days and nights with no relief from cold and hunger; the repugnant meals of black bread spread with fish-fat; the constant terror of investigation.

In time he becomes accustomed to the sudden jab of panic when an unexpected knock upon the door resounds through the stillness of a lightless and unheated room.

Above all he becomes accustomed to the ever-present bitterness of hate and suspicion, and the tragic desperation that robs a man of any certainty of hope.

The trains that jolt through east Germany provide the first introduction to the grim panorama of life shadowed by the Soviet flag.

Passengers are jammed into narrow and unheated coaches formerly used for troops, for third class passengers, and sometimes for freight.

First and second class accommodations have long since been abolished. Sleeping and dining cars have almost disappeared.

The Soviets have taken all rail equipment in good condition as reparations. Now a shortage of cars and engines, complicated by a lack of replacement and repair parts, is resulting in a virtual breakdown of Soviet zone transportation.

Passenger schedules have been cut by as much as 75 percent, with even the larger cities—Berlin, Dresden, Leipzig—linked by only two slow runs a day.

The crowded occupants speak frequently. They are well aware that Soviet spies have been planted among them to report any expression of dissatisfaction with the new eastern German way of life.

Occasionally a well-dressed, well-fed man shoulders his way through the tight-packed mass.

The unspoken contempt and hostility of the passengers close in upon his wake, for the east Germans know that only those who serve the Soviets well can display such signs of affluence.

Everywhere is the overbearing presence of Soviet power.

Soviet troops, tall, broad Georgians and slit-eyed Mongols, clog the stations. Russian officers stroll by with holstered pistols; brightly-chevroned military police, armed with rifles and machine pistols, walk slowly along in ceaseless scrutiny.

Every city and village has its Soviet barracks and Kommandatura. An estimated total of 300,000 soldiers and officers—more than double the allied forces in west Germany—represents one for every 75 east Germans under their subjugation.

At night the streets are deserted. Although the Russian troops are not allowed to mix with the population, attacks are nonetheless frequent. No German girl dares to venture out at night alone.

Everywhere too in east Germany is the cold—stinging, numbing, inescapable cold.

It whips through the glasslike skeletons of buildings and whirles almost visibly through the empty streets.

The people wash with cold water, and sleep fully clothed in rooms where their breath hangs motionless in clouds of frost.

Every east German wears the emblem of his suffering; a raw, red patch of cheek veins burst and frozen.

Body warmth is at a premium. Passengers on trains and streetcars huddle close together, and even strangers embrace for a few minutes of fleeting comfort.

Typical of the larger cities in Soviet Germany is Dresden, before the war one of Germany's gayest cities.

Today some 500,000 people—compared with 650,000 in pre-war years—live among its vast, desolate acres of bombed-out, flattened ruins. Throughout east Germany there is no evidence of rebuilding.

In the bare-girded railroad station huge broad white and red banners urge greater production under the recently-introduced east German two-year plan, and promise a better life to those who have long ago forgotten what one is.

Outside a shivering, gloveless woman offers shoeshines for half a cent.

Across the street beckons the warm and brightly-lighted lobby of the city's best hotel—now for Russians only.

High over Dresden stand two symbols of all east Germany. On one mountain promontory is the Russian tourist restaurant, a former castle reconstructed by the Russians with all its glittering chandeliers and thick soft rugs.

Atop the roof burn two huge, neon signs, their deep blue and crimson glow visible for miles around.

Inside gather the new rulers of east Germany, the Communist officials, managers of "people's" factories, and police informers.

On another peak a half-mile away stands a smaller restaurant, the Luisenhof, patronized by those whom the Soviet minions have dispossessed—former businessmen, lawyers, educators.

The interior is chilly, the furnishings far less ornate, the food half-cooked and strictly rationed.

(Tomorrow: Germans under Soviet rule converted into fear-stricken people.)

also the importance of not being incorporated was stressed.

Because of his efforts as a charter officer, former Chief of Police Frank Hallman, of Sellersville, was made an honorary member.

Cinstable Isaac D. Derstine, Hilltown, made a motion that W. Lester Trauch, he elected the second honorary member. Only six honorary members are named during a year. The two honorary members will receive their citations at the annual police school graduation ceremony in the spring.

Secretary Elmer M. Shupe, Edison, announced three new members, Elysses M. Godshall, West Rockhill township; Elmer F. Egert, Sellersville, RD 1, and Norman Cornall, Interstate Bridge Police-men.

Chief Marion, who is urging increasing the membership, handed out membership applications to various officers who will make personal contact with potential members.

The next meeting will be held Thursday, Feb. 24.
